HOVING ANNOUNCES CURATORS FOR CENTRAL AND PROSPECT PARKS
(FOR RELEASE AFTER 10 a.m. WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1966)

"Two of the nation's leading architectural historians", were named by Parks Commissioner Thomas P.P. Hoving as curators of Central and Prospect Parks at a press conference at the Arsenal today, (Wednesday, January 19th). In announcing his appointment of Henry Hope Reed, Jr. as Curator of Central Park and Clay Lancaster as Curator of Prospect Park, Parks Commissioner Hoving noted that "these two parks are internationally recognized as great works of art, and, just as one would not take a wire brush and Mr. Clean to a fine painting, one must have the same kind of sensitivity and expertise in the care and restoration of these works of Frederick Law Olmsted."

Commissioner Hoving said that the two curators, who will be assisted by a $4,000 grant each from the J.M. Kaplan Foundation and funded through the Greensward Foundation, "will be charged with the responsibility of advising the Commissioner on 'keeping' these historic monuments, and will act just as a curator in a great art or science or natural history museum." The Parks Commissioner noted that "I have deliberately chosen men who are not only distinguished in their field but who live near their respective parks and who know every part of each park's history, development, and design." Mr. Lancaster is a resident of Columbia Heights in Brooklyn, and Mr. Reed lives on Manhattan's East Side.

Commissioner Hoving also announced the appointment of three assistants: Mrs. Julie North Chelminski who will be Assistant to the Commissioner and help in the reorganization of the Department of Parks; Mrs. Mary Perot Nichols, Public Relations Advisor; and Mr. Arthur Rosenblatt, A.I.A., Design Consultant to the Commissioner. Mr. Rosenblatt is employed by Urban America, Inc. on a grant from the American Conservation Foundation, the Taconic Foundation and the Dell Publishing Foundation and assigned to the Parks Department. Mr. Rosenblatt will advise the Parks Commissioner on the raising of the quality of architectural and landscape design both in the Department and in the selection of outside designers.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving announced a new chess program will be held for boys and girls from 9 to 16 years of age beginning on Monday evening, February 14th at P.S. 33, located at 281 Ninth Avenue, in the Chelsea section of Manhattan. The new program will be under the sponsorship of the American Chess Foundation and will be implemented by Mr. Larkin Green of the Hudson Guild and Mr. Don Stapleton of the Parks Department Recreation staff.

An instructor will be paid by the American Chess Foundation to explain the rudiments of the game to beginners and assist the more advanced players in improving their game.

The program will be conducted each Monday at 7:00 p.m. through the Winter and Spring.

In making the announcement, Parks Commissioner Hoving said that it was his hope, as well as that of Mr. Milton F. Goldstein Chairman of the Committee on Chess for Youth of the American Chess Foundation, to extend this program to other youth serving agencies throughout the city.

Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving kept a campaign pledge of Mayor John V. Lindsay as he announced today the first of the Parks Department's architectural competitions. Said Hoving at a press conference at the Arsenal today, "In his White Paper on Parks and Recreation Mayor Lindsay pledged that he would bring back the opportunity for imagination, taste and creative design that existed in the 19th century when New York City led the nation in park planning and design."

"With the generous assistance of the Horn and Hardart Company, we are inviting architects in the metropolitan area to compete for a $2,000 first prize for a prototype refreshment kiosk for Central Park", said Commissioner Hoving. Horn and Hardart has also agreed, Commissioner Hoving said "to provide up to $12,000 for the first kiosk." The architect who wins the $2,000 first prize will also receive the commission. The New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects will write the program for the competitors and will, with Horn and Hardart and the Parks Department, jointly select the panel of judges.

"We are presently searching for additional private funds to compensate the second and third runners-up in this competition", said Commissioner Hoving, "But", he added, "at least as important as who wins first, second or third place in this competition is the fact that we will tap hitherto unknown designers to whom we can offer other Parks Department design commissions."

Commissioner Hoving also announced the participation of "three of the city's major educational institutions" in the solving of "several of our park design problems." A class at the Pratt Institute will design a small triangular playground site adjacent to Columbia Heights in Brooklyn which was furnished by the Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority. TBTA will also pay for the playground's construction.

Another class at the City College of New York, said Commissioner Hoving, will design a temporary knock-down recreation facility to be built on an extremely low budget in the Metro North Urban Renewal area in East Harlem. The site comprises about one-third of a block between 100th and 102nd street and the East River Drive. Still a third class at the Columbia School of Architecture will undertake "a feasibility study of a year-round marionette theater for one of our parks" said Commissioner Hoving. In each case of university participation, Commissioner Hoving emphasized that the Department would receive a variety of solutions to the problems involved which it could not afford to take on with its present limited design staff. The Commissioner also said that he was seeking the support of philanthropic groups to put up construction funds for the temporary East Harlem park.

In another announcement, Commissioner Hoving said that Make New York Beautiful, Inc., headed by George Delacorte, has made $1,000 available to improve the Department of Parks "typographic and graphic design needs". The $1,000 has been awarded, said Commissioner Hoving, "to a firm of extremely creative graphic designers, the Push-Pin Studios." Push-Pin Studios will survey Parks Department graphics from letterheads to signs in the parks, said Commissioner Hoving. "I think if we are aiming for the highest standards of design excellence in our over-all approach to park and recreation planning," Commissioner Hoving said, "that we have to demonstrate what we mean by good design."

Commissioner Hoving also announced the appointment of Henry J. Stern as Executive Director of the Office of Cultural Affairs and Executive Director of the Parks Department, responsible for programming. Mr. Stern will also act as Counsel to the Department of Parks. Mr. Stern was formerly Assistant to Manhattan Borough Presidents Constance Baker Motley and Edward R. Dudley. He is a Vice-President of the non-partisan Council for Parks and Playgrounds. Mr. Stern is a graduate of City-College and of the Harvard Law School.

REMARKS OF P. RKS COMMISSIONER THOMAS P. F. HOWING AT A PRESS CONFERENCE ON WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1966 AT THE ARSENAL

IN HIS WHITE PAPER ON PARKS AND RECREATION, MAYOR LINDSAY PLEDGED THAT HE WOULD BRING BACK THE "OPPORTUNITY FOR IMAGINATION, TASTE AND CREATIVE DESIGN" THAT EXISTED IN THE 19TH CENTURY WHEN NEW YORK CITY LED THE NATION IN PARK PLANNING AND DESIGN.

TO THIS END, I AM ANNOUNCING TODAY THE FIRST OF MANY ARCHITECTURAL COMPETITIONS THAT THIS DEPARTMENT WILL SPONSOR.
WITH THE GENEROUS ASSISTANCE OF THE HORN AND HARDART COMPANY,
WE ARE INVITING ARCHITECTS IN THE METROPOLITAN AREA TO COMPETE
FOR A $2,000 FIRST PRIZE FOR A Prototype REFRESHMENT KIOSK FOR CranTRAL PAKK. THE HORN AND HARDART COMPANY HAS PROVIDED THE
$2,000 FOR THE FIRST PRIZE, WHICH INCLUDES THE COMMISSION, AND THEY HAVE ALSO PLEDGED TO PROVIDE UP TO $12,000 FOR THE FIRST KIOSK. THE NEW YORK CHAPTER OF THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ARCHITECTS, UNDER THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTION OF MR. CHARLES THOMSEN, WILL WRITE THE PROGRAM FOR THE COMPETITORS, AND WILL, WITH HORN
AND HARDART AND THE PARKS DEPARTMENT, JOINTLY SELECT THE PANEL OF JUDGES. WE ARE PRESENTLY SEARCHING FOR ADDITIONAL PRIVATE FUNDS TO COMPENSATE THE SECOND AND THIRD RUNNERS-UP IN THIS COMPETITION. BUT AT LEAST AS IMPORTANT AS WHO WINS FIRST, SECOND OR THIRD PLACE IS THE FACT THAT WE WILL TAP HITHERTO UNKNOWN DESIGNERS TO WHO TO CAN OFFER OTHER PARKS DEPARTMENT COMMISSIONS.

I AM ALSO GLAD TO ANNOUNCE THAT WE HAVE SOLICITED AND RECEIVED THE ASSISTANCE OF THREE OF THE CITY'S MAJOR EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS FOR THE SOLUTION OF SEVERAL OF OUR PARK DESIGN PROBLEMS. THE PRATT INSTITUTE'S COMMUNITY EDUCATION PROGRAM, HEADED BY MR. RON SHIFMAN, HAS AGREED TO MAKE THE DESIGN OF A SMALL, TRIANGULAR PLAYGROUND SITE ADJACENT TO COLUMBIA
HEIGHTS IN BROOKLYN A CLASS PROJECT. THE PRATT DESIGN GROUP WILL STUDY THE NEIGHBORHOOD, ATTEND COMMUNITY MEETINGS TO FIND OUT WHAT THE PEOPLE IN THE AREA WANT, AND PRODUCE A

VARIETY OF SOLUTIONS TO THE DESIGN OF THIS PLAYGROUND. THE COST OF BUILDING THE PLAYGROUND WILL BE FOOTED, WITHIN REASONABLE LIMITS, BY THE TRIBOROUGH BRIDGE AND TUNNEL AUTHORITY, WHO ALSO GAVE US THE PIECE OF LAND. A DISTINGUISHED LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT, MR. ROBERT ZION, DESIGNER OF THE RECENTLY ANNOUNCED SAMUEL PALEY PLAZA HAS AGREED TO BE THE DESIGN CRITIC OF THE PRATT PROJECT.

THE COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE HAS TAKEN ON ANOTHER DESIGN PROBLEM—ONE OF THEIR CLASSES WILL DO A FEASIBILITY STUDY OF A YEAR-ROUND MARIONETTE THEATER FOR ONE OF OUR PARKS. THIS IS A PROJECT WHICH, WITH OUR PRESENT BUDGET, WE COULD NOT POSSIBLY TAKE ON OURSELVES. WE HOPE TO GET A NUMBER OF USEFUL SOLUTIONS TO THIS PROBLEM—AND, AT THE SAME TIME, THE COLUMBIA STUDENTS WILL HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO WORK ON A REAL PROBLEM. THE DESIGN CRITIC HERE WILL BE MR. ROMALDO GIURGOLA, A WORLD-REKOWNED ARCHITECT AND PROFESSOR AT COLUMBIA.

I AM ESPECIALLY PLEASED THAT WE HAVE ENLISTED THE COOPERATION OF ONE OF NEW YORK CITY'S OWN SCHOOLS, CITY COLLEGE, FOR ANOTHER PROJECT. The filing period for the temporary positions of Seasonal Parkmen, Seasonal Park Helpers, and Playground Assistants has been extended to March 11, 1966, it was announced today by Thomas P. P. Hoving, Commissioner of Parks.

Because of the recent transit strike, Commissioner Hoving is allowing the additional time for those who were unable to file because of this situation.

The original closing date was February 11, 1966,
Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving informed the Board of Estimate and the City Council Finance Committee at the capital budget hearings today that he was "satisfied with the twenty-five and a half million dollars allotted to Parks in the coming year". Hoving called the allotment for Parks "an action budget rather than a paper budget".

The Parks Commissioner said that the 1966-67 Capital Budget "reflects the projects that we will actually be able to move in the next fiscal year—not a host of political promises that cannot possibly be processed."

Noting that the Parks Department's Design and Construction division was "seriously understaffed", Commissioner Hoving said that "Until we can gear our machinery to processing a greater load, we cannot honestly or responsibly ask for more capital funds."

However, Commissioner Hoving assured representatives of Bedford-Stuyvesant in Brooklyn that budget cuts made in a recreation center in Tompkins Square and in the proposed Kosciusko swimming pool would not "delay these two projects by one single day."

Commissioner Hoving said that "if the books are removed from the library in Tompkins Square where the recreation center is to be built and if the 75 families are relocated from the Kosciusko swimming pool site and final design plans are ready in this coming year, I will come back to the Mayor and plead for the restoration of the funds in this budget."

Commissioner Hoving requested the restoration of funds "for the soft surfacing of a ball field in the James J. Walker Playground in Greenwich Village", so that children playing in the Little League teams in that area "do not have to travel all the way to Central Park for their games."

HOVING ANNOUNCES "OPERATION SPRUCE-UP" IN BROOKLYN

Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving will announce the inauguration of "Operation Spruce-Up" at a press conference at the New Lots Playground in the East New York section of Brooklyn on Thursday morning, March 3rd at 10 a.m.

"Operation Spruce-Up" is the creation of borough-wide mobile maintenance task forces that will be able to respond quickly to citizen complaints about broken benches, fences, and other minor repairs needed in parks and playgrounds. The new mobile maintenance task force for Brooklyn will begin repair work at the New Lots Playground on March 3rd.

Commissioner Hoving will spend the rest of this week and Monday of next working out of the Brooklyn Borough office of the Parks Department at Litchfield Mansion, Prospect Park West and 5th Street. The press is invited to accompany him from the New Lots Playground to Litchfield Mansion after the press conference.

The New Lots Playground is bounded by Riverdale, Sackman, Newport and Christopher Streets. The nearest subway is the IRT-New Lots line which stops at Junius Street.

STATEMENT BY PARKS COMMISSIONER THOMAS P.F. MOVING AT THE NEW LOTS PLAYGROUND, BROOKLYN, THURSDAY, MARCH 3rd, 1966 AT THE INAUGURATION OF THE PILOT PROJECT, "OPERATION SPRUCE-UP".

"Operation Spruce-Up" is a pilot project to facilitate the rapid repair of buildings, surfacing, playground equipment, and planting in our parks and playgrounds. If this method of using a mobile task force made up of the most skilled men from landscaping, maintenance and mechanical staffs, works in this borough, we will extend the method throughout the five boroughs.
If it works, it will revolutionize the whole manner of cleanup and maintenance employed by this department.

Our hope is that the mobile task force will enable us to use our limited maintenance manpower more efficiently. This task force will move first to the five worst parks in this borough which have been selected by our staff. It is also geared to move rapidly on citizen complaints of broken benches, fences, holes in surfacing and the like. We are urging the citizens of Brooklyn to telephone their complaints into the Brooklyn Borough Office to Mr. Herbert Harris, Borough Director. The number is 50 8-2300.

But I do want to make it clear that this is not a substitute for the additional manpower which this department desperately needs. Over the past 24 years, this department has been systematically stripped of the skilled men needed to maintain a park system that was ever expanding in a civilized city. Over a 24 year period, we have had a 40% increase in park acreage and a 23% increase in the number of playgrounds. At the same time there has been only a 12% increase in the number of mechanics employed by this department. The result is what you see around you. Parks and playgrounds that have suffered such neglect in maintenance that they can only be brought back to usefulness by major capital budget expenditures. I am going to ask for public support for an increased expense budget this spring, make no mistake about that.

We also have a serious problem in vandalism. My staff informs me that the cost of vandalism has increased each succeeding year since 1955. By showing that we, the government of the city care about our parks enough to tackle the day to day maintenance, I am hopeful that we can reduce this vandalism somewhat. There isn't much incentive not to vandalize, when a playground is a mess already. Also, by bringing the Department closer to the people in the neighborhood, by involving them in our plans for rehabilitation and for new parks, we hope to create a more protective feeling on the part of local people toward their parks.

Mr. Sam White, the Parks Department Director of Maintenance and Operations, and Herb Harris, Borough Director of Parks in Brooklyn, are here to answer any technical questions about Operation Spruce-Up.

Weather permitting, the Ski Slopes in Van Cortlandt Park, the Bronx, will remain open for public use until the end of the day's business Sunday, March 13, 1966, it was announced today by Park Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving.
PARKS COMMISSIONER MOVING EXPANDS "OPERATION SPRUCE-UP"

TO THE BRONX AND QUEENS

Parks Commissioner Thomas P.P. Hoving announced today that "Operation Spruce-Up" would be extended into Bronx and Queens this week. "Operation Spruce-Up" is the new mobile unit of maintenance and landscape personnel that was inaugurated on March 3rd at the New Lots Playground in the East New York section of Brooklyn. The mobile units are a pilot project to determine if the Department of Park's limited manpower can be put to more efficient use. Each borough will eventually have its own mobile unit.

Commissioner Hoving said that "the clean-up and fix-up blitz in the New Lots Playground has justified its inauguration by its usefulness and by the community response to it. I am therefore extending this pilot project to the boroughs of Brooklyn and the Bronx. We will continue to watch its progress, and, if it continues to prove worthwhile, it will become the principal method by which the Parks Department carries out its park maintenance tasks."

The Parks Commissioner noted that "'Operation Spruce-Up' had received an extremely favorable reception in the New Lots Playground neighborhood" and released the text of a typical letter from a youngster who used the playground: "Thanks a million for cleaning up New Lots Park in Brooklyn for us kids. We like the Recreation Leader, J. Virgilic. Please let him stay there. It would help us a lot."

Parks Commissioner Hoving said that "I am sure the newly aroused neighborhood will take an interest in this playground and will discourage acts of vandalism which are committed by a very small minority."

In the borough of the Bronx, the Forest Houses Playground, located on the south side of 166th Street between Tinton and Union Avenues, will be the first to be tackled by the Bronx task force, starting Monday, March 14th.

The kick-off date for "Operation Spruce-up" in Queens will be Tuesday, March 15th, at the Windmiller Playground at Woodside Avenue, 39th Avenue, 52nd Street and Skillman Avenue.

"Operations Spruce-Up" is led by Sam White, Director of Maintenance and Operations of the Department of Parks. Direct supervision of the task forces in each borough is exercised by the Borough Directors.

Reports by the public about playgrounds which require attention may be made directly to Borough Directors at the borough offices, Commissioner Hoving said. In the Bronx, the Borough Director is Harry Gross and the phone number is TAlmadge 8-3200. The Queens Borough Director is Harold P. McManus, GIlbralter 2-7640.

Fact Sheet on the Old Croton Aqueduct Hike led by Parks Commissioner Thomas P. F. Hoving on Sunday, May 8, 1966.

On February 1, 1966, the Hudson River Valley Commission, headed by Laurance S. Rockefeller, published a report recommending that the Old Croton Aqueduct right-of-way be incorporated into "a magnificent series of walkways and trails". The report recommended that there be "a cooperative effort by New York City and Westchester County to transform the whole of the Aqueduct into a linear park".

First steps toward the achievement of this "linear park", said the Commission report, "will be removal of the encroachments and new landscaping and park development work; eventually the construction of pedestrian overpasses or tunnels to fill links interrupted by new highways. The Federal Urban Beautification and Open Space Programs were set up to encourage this kind of action, and funds should be vigorously solicited from them".

The Hudson River Valley Commission was assisted in the research on the Old Croton Aqueduct by Richard Edes Harrison, cartographer, Chairman of the Conservation Committee of the Linnaean Society; and by the New York-New Jersey Trail Conference.

On March 8, 1966, Mr. Harrison met with staff members of the Parks Department to propose improvements in the Old Croton Aqueduct walkway.
As the result of that meeting, Commissioner Hoving's hike was planned. A further result of the meeting with Mr. Harrison was that the Parks Department's maintenance staff was instructed to clean up the Van Cortlandt Swamp, just off the Aqueduct trail -- a haven for New York City naturalists for over a century. During the construction of the Major Deegan Expressway, which was completed in 1956, two additional holes had to be built for Van Cortlandt Golf Course on either side of the swamp. A large amount of construction debris was thrown into the swamp at that time. The Parks Department, in March of 1966, spent two days, with thirteen men and four trucks, cleaning out the swamp. (The Van Cortlandt Swamp and its flora and fauna were extensively discussed in John Kieran's "Natural History of New York City", Houghton Mifflin, Boston, 1959).

The right-of-way of the Old Croton Aqueduct through New York City is controlled on the surface by the Department of Parks. In Westchester, it is under the control of the Department of Water, Gas and Electricity.

According to the "New York Walk Book" (The American Geographical Society, 1951) "The Old Croton Aqueduct... has a charm of its own, an old-world distinction, a character unlike any other walk within our radius. Running through a region of estates along the bank of the Hudson, it has a beautiful setting and fine outlooks across the Hudson to the Palisades, High Tor, and other Scenic features of the river. Broad as a roadway, the top of the massive water-tunnel is covered all along its level, winding way, and down its sloping sides with greensward, clipped and tended. Overhead, stately trees make arches and vistas and shade the path, while its course, as it swings in and out along hill sides on the edge of the Hudson, furnishes miles of variety and outlooks. For maximum reward from minimum exertion no walking hereabouts compares with this peaceful way, whether it be close at hand at the end of a subway, as in Van Cortlandt Park, or thirty miles to the north, high above the river."
The old Croton Aqueduct was completed in 1842. New York, with a population of around 300,000, had, up to that time, relied on streams and wells on Manhattan Island for its water supply. We take for granted an abundant supply of pure, soft water. Not so, the New Yorkers of a hundred years ago. To them a 'Croton Cocktail' was more than a fleeting jest. In this connection the following extracts from the Diary of Philip Hone, 1842-1851, Vol. II, pp. 137 and 150-51 (Dodd, Mead, New York, 1910) may be of interest. (Mr. Hone was Mayor of New York, 1826-28, and a famous bon vivant and entertainer for the leading men of his day.)

"July 12 (1842). My wife and I drove out this afternoon to see the two reservoirs in which the Croton water was introduced a few days since. (Yorkville and Murray Hill, the latter now the site of the Public Library).... They are at present about half full, and the clear, sweet, soft water (clear it is, and sweet, and soft: for to be in the fashion I drank a tumbler of it, and found it all these) is flowing in copiously, and has already formed two pretty, limpid, placid Mediterranean seas, of wholesome temperance beverage, well calculated to cool the palates and quench the thirst of New Yorkers, and to diminish the losses of the fire insurance companies.

"October 12 (1842). Nothing is talked of or thought of in New York but Croton water: fountains, aqueducts, hydrants, and hose attract our attention and impede our progress through the streets. Political spouting has given place to water spouts, and the free current of water has diverted the attention of the people from the vexed questions of the confused state of the national currency. It is astonishing how popular the introduction of water is among all classes of our citizens, and how cheerfully they acquiesce in the enormous expense which will burden them and their posterity with taxes to the latest generation. Water! Water! is the universal note which is sounded through every part of the city, and infuses joy and exultation into the masses, even though they are out of spirits.'

"The very name 'aqueduct' takes one back to Roman times when water was brought from the hills into Rome and other big cities by masonry conduits following the contours of the hills and then, where necessary, crossing the valleys on a series of graceful stone arches. The flow was by gravity throughout. The Old Croton Aqueduct was built on that general principle. From Croton it follows the contour of the hills along the Hudson past Ossining, Tarrytown and Yonkers until it reached the Harlem River which it, until 1950, crossed in true Roman fashion by High Bridge.

"Soon the old Croton Aqueduct became inadequate to supply the rapidly growing city and new reservoirs were added in the Croton Valley, notably the Croton Falls Reservoir. Then a new and much higher dam was placed much lower down the Croton River to double the storage capacity of the Croton Reservoir. Along about the same time, that is, in 1890, the new Croton Aqueduct was completed with four times the capacity of the old one. By that time, New York had a population of 1,500,000 and was still growing fast, so that the increase in water supply was only keeping step with the population."
The building of the new Croton Aqueduct was also prompted by a severe drought in the mid-1870's and 1880 was the driest year recorded in the Croton watershed since the Aqueduct was built. In 1881 extraordinary measures were taken to reduce water consumption -- the outlet gates in Central Park were partially closed and water was shut off in public fountains and all street sprinkling was stopped.

The right-of-way of the old Croton Aqueduct has been used by the American Youth Hostels, the New York Hiking Club, the Westchester Trail Association, the Sierra Club, the Woodland Trail Walkers, and other hiking groups. In 1946, the construction on the Major Deegan Expressway in Van Cortlandt Park was begun, presenting a difficult obstacle for Aqueduct hikers and making almost inaccessible the Van Cortlandt swamp, where John Kieran spent much of his boyhood.

There is some water flowing through the old Croton Aqueduct at the present time. According to the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, if water ceases to flow through the Aqueduct, the Aqueduct lands revert to their original owners.

Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving welcomed the addition of a gaily painted and versatile Dutch Organ to Central Park on Wednesday morning, April 6th, at a press conference near the Pony Track at the southern entrance to the Central Park Zoo.

"The Dutch word for 'joie de vivre' is 'plezier in het leven', said Commissioner Hoving, "and that's what this lovely instrument will add to Central Park."

In thanking representatives of four Dutch organizations in New York who cooperated in bringing the Dutch organ to Central Park—KLM (Royal Dutch Airlines), the Holland-America Line, the Netherlands National Tourist Office and the Netherlands Information Service—and its proprietors, Norman Ernsting, a New Yorker of Dutch descent and his Dutch fiancee, Elisabeth Schaly, Commissioner Hoving said, "This is the best deal for New Yorkers since the Dutch bought Manhattan Island from the Indians for only 24 bucks."

At the press conference Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving cranked out an up tempo march on the Dutch street organ which will be heard daily during the summer season in the Zoo area and other locations in Central Park. The present location is at the Pony Track near the entrance of the Zoo, at Fifth Avenue and 63rd Street. The Dutch street organ will be played daily free of charge to all Central Park visitors.

The organ is named 'Flower Belles' after the two carved animated figures which preside over the ornamental baroque facade which is decorated with baskets of flowers. The organ, nine feet tall by twelve feet long, weighs almost 2,000 pounds, and is permanently mounted on a three-wheeled lindenwood cart. Plans are being made, to transfer the organ to various locations in the park.

'Flower Belles',— built in 1905 by the Brothers Richter, contains over 450 square wooden pipes, eight bases, snare and base drums, cymbals and a glockenspiel, and its musical repertoire provides a great variety of shadings, pitches and vocal tones, simulating the sound of violins, flutes, trumpets and trombones, and create many virtuoso effects.

The organ is played mechanically by turning a flywheel which in turn pumps air into large bellows. Perforated cardboard music books are fed into the organ and trip the 87 keys which allow air to flow into the appropriate pipes to play a varied program such as Strauss waltzes, Sussa marches, and Dutch folk tunes.

The mustachioed man behind 'Flower Belles' is Norman Ernsting, who with his Dutch Fiancee Elisabeth Schaly, became interested in organs during the New York World's Fair. It was at the Belgian Village, where the couple performed for two seasons with their Puchinello's Puppet Theatre, that the hurdy-gurdy music of the old steam-carousel caught their imagination and they determined to have a street organ of their very own.

After the Fair, the couple made a special trip to Holland in hopes of buying a Dutch street organ but they found there were none for sale nor owners willing to part with their treasures. Finally, in the little village near Amsterdam Elisabeth has once gone to school, the couple ended their search in the work-shop of Antoon Pluer, a little-known organ builder and repairman.

Antoon Pluer, a craftsman of the old European tradition, continues the almost lost profession of street organ builder. In his work shop, with the help of his apprentice son, he was finishing the restoration of the Richter organ. With much devotion he had repaired this beautiful organ, building new bellows, fitting new pipes and leather valves, and cutting new music books.
Street organs became a favorite form of entertainment during the late 19th and early 20th century in France, Belgium, Germany and Holland. Today it is only in Amsterdam that organs like 'Flower Bells' can be seen and heard playing popular tunes, marches, waltzes and modern hits in the cobble-stoned streets and squares.

These instruments all have been endowed with names and representational scenes are painted on their heavily carved facades. The street organs are placed on three-wheeled carts and pulled about. They are all hand cranked. Great pride and rivalry exist among the organ grinders, and the instruments are kept in perfect condition mechanically as well as in appearance.

HECKSCHER PLAYGROUND, THE CHILDREN'S ZOO AND CARL SCHURZ PARK WILL BE THE FIRST TO BE CLOSED WARNS PARKS COMMISSIONER HOVING IF HIS DEPARTMENT'S BUDGET IS NOT RAISED.

Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving warned today that "the Heckscher Playground, the Children's Zoo and Carl Schurz Park will be among those facilities that will be closed down first if my Department doesn't get a fair share of the city's Expense Budget this year." Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Women's City Club, Commissioner Hoving said that "every year since 1956, the Parks Department's share of the total city budget has been shrinking. We've gone down from 1.547 per cent in the 1956-1957 budget to 1.099 in 1965-1966. If this trend continues, we'll end up at 0% of the total city budget."

Commissioner Hoving said that "the result of this diminishing budget is what you see—a shameful physical deterioration of the city's park system. Unless I have your support, and the support of the general public at the budget hearings in May," Commissioner Hoving said, "I am just going to have to hang a sign on a lot of parks and playgrounds that have been closed down saying 'Sorry, we're out of money'. And the pinch is going to be felt first right here in Manhattan in some of the most visible park facilities in the city. I am not going to economize at the expense of people in East New York, Bedford-Stuyvesant, Corona-East Elmhurst and the southeast Bronx—to mention a few of the many places in this city that have been getting the dirty end of the budget stick for too long."

Commissioner Hoving told the Women's City Club that "Mayor Lindsay is extremely sympathetic to the problems of the Parks Department and he is not the man you have to convince. It is the Board of Estimate and the City Council—and, ultimately, the Congress, because we are going to need federal money for park maintenance, too."

The Parks Commissioner said that he was asking for $56 million for the Parks Department's expenses for the 1966-1967 fiscal year, a net raise of $12.8 million over last year's budget. "This budget raise would provide,"

said Commissioner Hoving, "547 additional recreation leaders and playground assistants at a cost of a little over $2 million; the new crack maintenance teams now operating in the 5 boroughs, 'Operation Spruce-Up', call for $1.3 million; $37,520 is for desperately needed in-service training for personnel (at the moment we have 6,000–10,000 in the summer time—and only one man who pulls personnel off their jobs to train them to train others); and $109,000 for legal, design and community relations assistance."

The Commissioner noted that the community relations assistance was essential "if we are to keep our promise not to ram any more standardized parks designs down the throats of communities. There are literally hundreds of community groups that have park and playground projects now and we just don't have enough personnel to sit down with each of them and work out plans that are satisfactory to them and to us."

The seventh annual Eastern Tennis Patrons series of free tennis clinics for boys and girls, held in conjunction with the New York City Department of Parks, will begin Tuesday May 10 and run through a record 60 sessions over a period of six weeks.

The free lessons will be conducted through June 13 by professional Lawn Tennis Association teachers in the five boroughs. Boys and girls, nine through 17 years, are eligible to attend.

The philanthropic Patrons, headed by Alastair B. Martin and Daniel S. Johnson, are organized for the purpose of developing tennis talent in the East. They have been joined locally in this program by Thomas R. Hoving, Commissioner of Parks.

The series has been increased from last year's 78 sessions which drew 3,338 youths at seven parks and will be augmented by addition of an eighth site to be selected.

The full schedule will be completed next week, but last year's seven sites have been included in the program.

The two-hour classes, starting 3:30 P.M., will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at MacKinley Park, Brooklyn; Alley Pond Park, Queens, and Van Cortland Park, Staten Island. They also are scheduled Mondays and Wednesdays at Crotona and Vallalay Parks, both Bronx, and Mondays and Thursdays at Central Park, Manhattan.

In addition, clinics will be held six Saturdays, starting May 18, at Astoria Park, Queens, at 9 A.M.

Prizes will be awarded by the Patrons and an inter-park team tournament will climax the six weeks of activity.
Six outstanding teachers from the Professional Lawn Tennis Association have been retained to conduct classes in the Eastern Tennis Patrons seventh annual series of free clinics for boys and girls to be held in conjunction with the New York City Department of Parks beginning Tuesday, May 10.

The pros will conduct the clinics for youths, nine through 17 years, at seven of parks. One more will be added to the staff when an eighth park is selected this weekend.

Bob Barrow, a member of the city’s new school tennis workshop where he instructs future teachers of the sport, will run the clinics at two of the sites. He will be at Mullahy Park, Bronx, on Mondays and Wednesdays, and at McKinley Park, Brooklyn, on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

George Seawagen, St. John’s University coach, will conduct classes at Alley Pond Park, Tuesdays and Thursdays. Tex Schwab, a former chairman of the National Indoor Championships when that event was held in New York, will be the pro at Crotona Park, Bronx, on Mondays and Wednesdays.

Other professionals in the program include veterans Anthony Ferrara at Astoria Park, Queens, Saturday mornings; Hank Fenton at Central Park, Manhattan, Mondays and Thursdays, and Leo Katz at Walker Park, Staten Island, Tuesdays and Thursdays.
STATEMENT BY COMMISSIONER HOVING ON OCCASION OF THE OPENING OF THE EASTERN TENNIS PATRONS CLINIC IN HARLEM.

It is appropriate that the Eastern Tennis Patrons' first clinic should be opened here in this particular spot because these are the courts where one of the nation's greatest tennis players, Althea Gibson, learned to play and Sid Llewelyn here was the Pro who helped Miss Gibson on her way to becoming the National Champion at Forest Hills.

I want to welcome you all here today and I am glad to see that through the dedicated work of the Eastern Tennis Patrons you will all have the opportunity to become Althea Gibsons.
Willis Reed of the Knicks and Gerry Philbin of the Jets will be among the sports celebrities at the opening program of the Eastern Tennis Patrons' series of free clinics for boys and girls Tuesday, May 10, at the Harlem Houses Playground.

The program, to be attended also by city officials and top-ranking tennis players, will mark the "send off" for the seventh annual series which will extend through a record 34 clinics at eight city-wide parks.

The Harlem Houses Playground, 151st Street and Seventh Avenue, is the newest addition to the clinics being sponsored by the philanthropic Patrons, headed by Daniel S. Johnson and Alastair B. Martin, in cooperation with the Department of Parks.

The two-hour clinics, for youths nine through 17 years, will run through June 18. They are also scheduled for McKinley Park, Brooklyn; Alley Pond and Astoria Parks, Queens; Crotona and Milllaly Parks, Bronx; Walker Park, Staten Island, and Central Park, Manhattan.

Parks Commissioner Thomas P. F. Hoving will lead a HIKE through the Bronx along the top of the Old Croton Aqueduct on Sunday, May 8th. The walk will begin at University Avenue and Morton Place at 11 a.m. and will lead through Van Cortlandt Park to the Westchester County line and is expected to take approximately two hours.

Participating will be members of the New York-New Jersey Trail Conference, the Sierra Club, the Linnean Society of New York and several public officials. The objective is to point out the desirability of preserving this unique and charming trail which has been used by hikers and casual strollers since 1942. The northern end of the Old Croton Aqueduct trail, which is 32 miles above New York City at the Croton Dam, was recently hiked by a group led by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and members of the Sierra Club.

In a report published on February 1, 1966, the Hudson River Valley Commission first proposed that there be "a cooperative effort by New York City and Westchester County to transform the whole of the Aqueduct into a linear park." The Hudson River Valley Commission report suggested that first steps toward establishing this linear park, or permanent walkway, "will be removal of the encroachments and new landscaping and park development work; eventually the construction of pedestrian overpasses or tunnels to fill links interrupted by new highways. The Federal Urban Beautification and Open Space Programs," said the report, "were set up to encourage this kind of action, the funds should be vigorously solicited from them."

Commissioner Hoving will make a proposal for one pedestrian bridge on the hike and will scout the possibilities of circumventing or removing other obstructions on the walkway.

In the Bronx, the Old Croton Aqueduct right of way's surface rights are controlled by the Department of Parks.

Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving made a passionate plea for his full Expense Budget request of fifty-eight and two-thirds million dollars before the Board of Estimate and City Council Finance Committee hearings today. Five and one-third million dollars had been cut from the Parks Department's Expense Budget request in the Mayor's Executive Budget.

Commissioner Hoving took the City Fathers on a verbal tour of areas of the city's dilapidated and run-down parks, using photographs and excerpts from letters from park users as illustrations of existing conditions.

Describing Brooklyn's Marine Park as "the plague", filled with "garbage, hulks, old cars, the sharp, rusty metal of which cut into children's flesh, rats, and 6-foot weeds", Commissioner Hoving said that "The Parks Department cannot possibly cure the mess in this area. We don't have enough people to do it."

Turning from "the filth of Marine Park to the excitement and vibrancy and cleanliness of the Brownsville Recreation Center", Commissioner Hoving said, "This is a nationally famous institution. It has an orthodonture clinic, a cerebral palsy center, a Golden Age center, wonderful facilities for children of all ages. It's great! But for how long?" the Commissioner asked. "To keep pace with its excellence, it needs, and very urgently, three recreation workers. Without the money we cannot fill those jobs."

Theoretically visiting a neighborhood playground without a name at 23rd Street between 4th and 5th Avenues in Brooklyn, Commissioner Hoving described it as "twisted, broken and dirty. It is an ominous and sinister place. We can't cure it! There is no steady attendant — no full-time recreation staff. And there is no doubt," said the Parks Commissioner, "that the dearth of maintenance and recreation staff has contributed to its becoming a jungle of vandalism and hopelessness."

The Commissioner invited the Board of Estimate members and City Councilmen to "sit down on a bench here — if we can find one that has slats —
and talk to one of the mothers by means of a letter I received: "Why can't you do something about this awful mess? I cry, for it is so horrible. There is never a parkie around ever. The kids get bored and break everything. There are no balls or bats or anything for the kids to play with. No one in this City has ever cared about this. Try, please, to get something done."

Commissioner Hoving said that the "antidote" for the conditions he described "is people — men to be here, men to clean it — men to cure it."

The Parks Commissioner noted that "In 1941, we had 466 playgrounds and 213 mechanics. In 1956, we had 900 playgrounds and 237 mechanics. What a superlative growth!" exclaimed the Commissioner. "In 25 years our playgrounds have increased 93%. Our mechanics have increased a ridiculous and appalling 12%.

In other large cities, Commissioner Hoving told the Board of Estimate and City Councilmen, the budget for parks "is not less than 3% of the total budget. Our budget in 1956 was 1.5%. That shrank steadily — that dwindled until last year in the depths of austerity to a brilliant one per cent. This year," said Commissioner Hoving, "the Executive Budget is 1.4 per cent. So we are out of the cellar of austerity." But, the Commissioner made clear that this is not enough.

He urged the City Council and Board of Estimate to retain the $1,3 million for Operation Spruce-Up which has rehabilitated 14 playgrounds in the last two months. Commissioner Hoving also emphasized the need for $37,000 for in-service training; $18,477 for personal services for the Department's design staff; $4,4 million to add to our maintenance staff above and beyond Spruce-Up; $3,6 million for 400 more recreation workers; $150,000 for tree planting under the Salute to the Seasons program; and $200,000 for Shakespeare in the Park.

Warning that cuts in his budget would mean a halt to building new facilities, Commissioner Hoving said "let us not delude ourselves into thinking we can go on building without staffing. Fish or cut bait," Hoving told the officials. "If we don't want the men to keep our parks decent, let's stop building .... No Coney Island Skating Rink, No Little League fields, No indoor recreation centers. No tree planting. No ball field lights. It might put the opening of the *Zoo in jeopardy."

Commissioner Hoving said that "we are entering a new era of appreciation of parks, recreation and cultural institutions. You can feel a a sense of urgency from the people." He implored the city officials to "cross the threshold" of this new era. "Go beyond it! You know we can't go backwards," Commissioner Hoving concluded.

Six outstanding teachers from the Professional Lawn Tennis Association have been retained to conduct classes in the Eastern Tennis Patrons seventh annual series of free clinics for boys and girls to be held in conjunction with the New York City Department of Parks beginning Tuesday, May 10.

The pros will conduct the clinics for youths, nine through 17 years, at seven parks. One more will be added to the staff when an eighth park is selected this weekend.

Bob Barrow, a member of the city's new school tennis workshop where he instructs future teachers of the sport, will run the clinics at two of the sites. He will be at Mullaly Park, Bronx, on Mondays and Wednesdays, and at McKinley Park, Brooklyn, on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

George Seawagen, St. John's University coach, will conduct classes at Alley Pond Park, Tuesdays and Thursdays. Tex Schweb, a former chairman of the National Indoor Championships when that event was held in New York, will be the pro at Grotona Park, Bronx, on Mondays and Wednesdays.

Other professionals in the program include veterans Anthony Ferrara at Astoria Park, Queens, Saturday mornings; Hank Fenton at Central Park, Manhattan, Mondays and Thursdays, and Leo Katz at Walker Park, Staten Island, Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Willis Reed of the Knicks and Gerry Philbin of the Jets will be among the sports celebrities at the opening program of the Eastern Tennis Patrons' series of free clinics for boys and girls Tuesday, May 10, at the Harlem Houses Playground.

The program, to be attended also by city officials and top-ranking tennis players, will mark the "send off" for the seventh annual series which will extend through a record 36 clinics at eight city-wide parks.

The Harlem Houses Playground, 151st Street and Seventh Avenue, is the newest addition to the clinics being sponsored by the philanthropic patrons, headed by Daniel S. Johnson and Alastair B. Martin, in cooperation with the Department of Parks.

The two-hour clinics, for youths nine through 17 years, will run through June 18. They are also scheduled for McKinley Park, Brooklyn; Alley Pond and Astoria Parks, Queens; Crotona and Valladay Parks, Bronx; Walker Park, Staten Island, and Central Park, Manhattan.

The Richmondtown Restoration, in which the City and the Staten Island Historical Society are partners, has progressed greatly during the past year. The Department of Real Estate has cooperated in demolishing nondescript modern buildings within the restoration area. The Park Department has completed a contract for moving three historic buildings from their previous sites to their permanent locations in Richmondtown. The Society has moved the Britton Cottage into the area from the Great Kills Park Addition and has continued its remarkable work of restoring such buildings as the Treasure House, the Lake-Tyson House and the Stephens General Store. The Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority has pledged $250,000 toward construction in Richmondtown that will commence this Spring, and the City's Capital budget will include matching funds for the work of restoration.

Contract plans and specifications for the Children's Zoo, that will be operated by the Staten Island Zoological Society in Barrett Park, are nearing completion. This project, like the Richmondtown Restoration, involves the City in an arrangement to match its funds with those of a privately administered cultural institution for the creation of a facility to be enjoyed by all the visitors to the popular Staten Island Zoo, whether they be New Yorkers or from other parts of the Metropolitan Region.
Arrangements for the Second Annual Golden Age Art Exhibition, sponsored by the Grand Street Boys' Association, Inc. and conducted by the Recreation Division of the Department of Parks, have been completed, it was announced today by Park Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving.

Parks Commissioner Thomas P. O'Hoving will lead a HIKE through the Bronx along the top of the Old Croton Aqueduct on Sunday, May 8th. The walk will begin at University Avenue and Morton Place at 11 a.m., and will lead through Van Cortlandt Park to the Westchester County line and is expected to take approximately two hours.

Participating will be members of the New York-New Jersey Trail Conference, the Sierra Club, the Linnean Society of New York and several public officials. The objective is to point out the desirability of preserving this unique and charming trail which has been used by hikers and casual strollers since 1942. The northern end of the Old Croton Aqueduct trail, which is 32 miles above New York City at the Croton Dam, was recently hiked by a group led by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and members of the Sierra Club.

In a report published on February 1, 1966, the Hudson River Valley Commission first proposed that there be "a cooperative effort by New York City and Westchester County to transform the whole of the Aqueduct into a linear park." The Hudson River Valley Commission report suggested that first steps toward establishing this linear park, or permanent walkway, "will be removal of the encroachments and new landscaping and park development work; eventually the construction of pedestrian overpasses or tunnels to fill links interrupted by new highways. The Federal Urban Beautification and Open Space Programs," said the report, "were set up to encourage this kind of action, the funds should be vigorously solicited from them."

Commissioner Hoving will make a proposal for one pedestrian bridge on the hike and will scout the possibilities of circumventing or removing other obstructions on the walkway.

In the Bronx, the Old Croton Aqueduct right of way's surface rights are controlled by the Department of Parks.

Fact Sheet on the Old Croton Aqueduct Hike led by Parks Commissioner Thomas P. F. Hoving on Sunday, May 8, 1966.

On February 1, 1966, the Hudson River Valley Commission, headed by Laurance S. Rockefeller, published a report recommending that the Old Croton Aqueduct right-of-way be incorporated into "a magnificent series of walkways and trails". The report recommended that there be "a cooperative effort by New York City and Westchester County to transform the whole of the Aqueduct into a linear park".

First steps toward the achievement of this "linear park", said the Commission report, "will be removal of the encroachments and new landscaping and park development work; eventually the construction of pedestrian overpasses or tunnels to fill links interrupted by new highways. The Federal Urban Beautification and Open Space Programs were set up to encourage this kind of action, and funds should be vigorously solicited from them".

The Hudson River Valley Commission was assisted in the research on the Old Croton Aqueduct by Richard Edes Harrison, cartographer, Chairman of the Conservation Committee of the Linnaean Society; and by the New York-New Jersey Trail Conference.

On March 8, 1966, Mr. Harrison met with staff members of the Parks Department to propose improvements in the Old Croton Aqueduct walkway.
As the result of that meeting, Commissioner Hoving's hike was planned. A further result of the meeting with Mr. Harrison was that the Parks Department's maintenance staff was instructed to clean up the Van Cortlandt Swamp, just off the Aqueduct trail -- a haven for New York City naturalists for over a century. During the construction of the Major Deegan Expressway, which was completed in 1956, two additional holes had to be built for Van Cortlandt Golf Course on either side of the swamp. A large amount of construction debris was thrown into the swamp at that time. The Parks Department, in March of 1966, spent two days, with thirteen men and four trucks, cleaning out the swamp. (The Van Cortlandt Swamp and its flora and fauna were extensively discussed in John Kieran's "Natural History of New York City", Houghton Mifflin, Boston, 1959).

The right-of-way of the Old Croton Aqueduct through New York City is controlled on the surface by the Department of Parks. In Westchester, it is under the control of the Department of Water, Gas and Electricity.

According to the "New York Walk Book" (The American Geographical Society, 1951) "The Old Croton Aqueduct... has a charm of its own, an old-world distinction, a character unlike any other walk within our radius. Running through a region of estates along the bank of the Hudson, it has a beautiful setting and fine outlooks across the Hudson to the Palisades, High Tor, and other Scenic features of the river. Broad as a roadway, the top of the massive water-tunnel is covered all along its level, winding way, and down its sloping sides with greensward, clipped and tended. Overhead, stately trees make arches and vistas and shade the path, while its course, as it swings in and out along hillsides on the edge of the Hudson, furnishes miles of variety and outlooks. For maximum reward from minimum exertion no walking hereabouts compares with this peaceful way, whether it be close at hand at the end of a subway, as in Van Cortlandt Park, or thirty miles to the north, high above the river."
"The old Croton Aqueduct was completed in 1842. New York, with a population of around 300,000, had, up to that time, relied on streams and wells on Manhattan Island for its water supply. We take for granted an abundant supply of pure, soft water. Not so, the New Yorkers of a hundred years ago. To them a 'Croton Cocktail' was more than a fleeting jest. In this connection the following extracts from the Diary of Philip Hone, 1842-1851, Vol. II, pp. 137 and 150-51 (Dodd, Mead, New York, 1910) may be of interest. (Mr. Hone was Mayor of New York, 1826-28, and a famous bon vivant and entertainer for the leading men of his day.)

"July 12 (1842). My wife and I drove out this afternoon to see the two reservoirs in which the Croton water was introduced a few days since. (Yorkville and Murray Hill, the latter now the site of the Public Library). ... They are at present about half full, and the clear, sweet, soft water (clear it is, and sweet, and soft: for to be in the fashion I drank a tumbler of it, and found it all these) is flowing in copiously, and has already formed two pretty, limpid, placid Mediterranean seas, of wholesome temperance beverage, well calculated to cool the palates and quench the thirst of New Yorkers, and to diminish the losses of the fire insurance companies.

"October 12 (1842). Nothing is talked of or thought of in New York but Croton water: fountains, aqueducts, hydrants, and hose attract our attention and impede our progress through the streets. Political spouting has given place to water spouts, and the free current of water has diverted the attention of the people from the vexed questions of the confused state of the national currency. It is astonishing how popular the introduction of water is among all classes of our citizens, and how cheerfully they accede to the enormous expense which will burden them and their posterity with taxes to the latest generation. Water! Water! is the universal note which is sounded through every part of the city, and infuses joy and exultation into the masses, even though they are out of spirits."

"The very name 'aqueduct' takes one back to Roman times when water was brought from the hills into Rome and other big cities by masonry conduits following the contours of the hills and then, where necessary, crossing the valleys on a series of graceful stone arches. The flow was by gravity throughout. The Old Croton Aqueduct was built on that general principle. From Croton it follows the contour of the hills along the Hudson past Ossining, Tarrytown and Yonkers until it reached the Harlem River which it, until 1950, crossed in true Roman fashion by High Bridge.

"Soon the old Croton Aqueduct became inadequate to supply the rapidly growing city and new reservoirs were added in the Croton Valley, notably the Croton Falls Reservoir. Then a new and much higher dam was placed much lower down the Croton River to double the storage capacity of the Croton Reservoir. Along about the same time, that is, in 1890, the new Croton Aqueduct was completed with four times the capacity of the old one. By that time, New York had a population of 1,500,000 and was still growing fast, so that the increase in water supply was only keeping step with the population."
The building of the new Croton Aqueduct was also prompted by a severe drought in the mid-1870's and 1880 was the driest year recorded in the Croton watershed since the Aqueduct was built. In 1881 extraordinary measures were taken to reduce water consumption -- the outlet gates in Central Park were partially closed and water was shut off in public fountains and all street sprinkling was stopped.

The right-of-way of the old Croton Aqueduct has been used by the American Youth Hostels, the New York Hiking Club, the Westchester Trail Association, the Sierra Club, the Woodland Trail Walkers, and other hiking groups. In 1946, the construction on the Major Deegan Expressway in Van Cortlandt Park was begun, presenting a difficult obstacle for Aqueduct hikers and making almost inaccessible the Van Cortlandt swamp, where John Kieran spent much of his boyhood.

There is some water flowing through the old Croton Aqueduct at the present time. According to the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, if water ceases to flow through the Aqueduct, the Aqueduct lands revert to their original owners.

Elephant was originally purchased by animal dealer Henry Trefflich as a gift of Lord and Taylor for the Bronx Zoo, which did not have space for it at the present time.

Fred Sandman, Central Park Zoo Supervisor, persuaded Commissioner Hoving to ask Lord and Taylor for the gift of the elephant for Central Park Zoo. Lord and Taylor graciously granted their permission.

Judge Jonah Goldstein, President of the Grand Street Boys' Association, will be host to members of the Golden Age Clubs of Owen Dolen Playground, J. Hood Wright Playground and Lost Battalion Hall at a Square Dance Party on Monday, May 16th, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. The party will take place at the Grand Street Boys' Association Ballroom, 106 West 55th Street, Manhattan.

Mayor John V. Lindsay has asked Thomas P.F. Hoving, Commissioner of Parks, to institute in the park system an extensive campaign to help decrease the incidence of false fire alarms in New York City. Meetings have been arranged for Fire Department and Park Department personnel in all five boroughs to discuss areas in which cooperative efforts may be helpful in coping with the problem.

Recreation personnel in park playgrounds, in their daily association with children will impress upon them the danger to life and property that false alarms may cause. Posters made available by the Fire Department will be displayed on park playground bulletin boards. Also, supervisory recreation personnel in community group meetings will seek the cooperation of parents.

Park Department maintenance personnel will also cooperate in the campaign. They will endeavor to keep alarm boxes under observation while on work assignments and forestry crews will prune trees near fire signal light poles so that the location of fire alarm boxes will not be obscured.

Previous experience indicates that 40,000 false fire alarms will be made in 1966. The seriousness of this problem makes it imperative that every responsible citizen participate in the campaign to educate children in the danger inherent in every false fire alarm. 5/13/66

Original hand-painted signs announcing New York City's Parks Department's rehabilitation and beautification projects are being created by Del Sol Productions, commissioned by the Pepsi-Cola Company.

The first 8 x 12 ft. signs to be erected are for the General Sherman Park, 59th Street and Fifth Avenue and the Robert Moses Plateau, 29th Street and First Avenue. The sign for the General Sherman Park was unveiled Monday morning, May 16th by city officials assisted by James B. Somerall, President, Pepsi-Cola Company.

A few weeks ago Parks Commissioner Thomas P. F. Hoving passed by the Pepsi-Cola Gallery located in the lobby of the Pepsi-Cola Company building, 59th Street and Park Avenue, and noticed the "Circus U.S.A." show then on display.

Commissioner Hoving, impressed by the original art work, inquired as to how he could achieve the same level of design for the signs announcing new Parks Department projects around New York City.

The result--Pepsi-Cola Company enthusiastically volunteered to commission signs by Del Sol Productions for Commissioner Hoving's projects.

Del Sol Productions, the design firm executing the signs, has produced many exhibitions for Pepsi-Cola Company in addition to the "Circus U.S.A." show. They recently accomplished the "Come Alive" show for the Pepsi-Cola Exhibition Gallery and designed the banners at the Vatican Pavilion for the New York World's Fair.
Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving made a passionate plea for his full Expense Budget request of fifty-eight and two-thirds million dollars before the Board of Estimate and City Council Finance Committee hearings today. Five and one-third million dollars had been cut from the Parks Department's Expense Budget request in the Mayor's Executive Budget.

Commissioner Hoving took the City Fathers on a verbal tour of areas of the city's dilapidated and run-down parks, using photographs and excerpts from letters from park users as illustrations of existing conditions.

Describing Brooklyn's Marine Park as "the plague", filled with "garbage, hulks, old cars, the sharp, rusty metal of which cut into children's flesh, rats, and 6-foot weeds", Commissioner Hoving said that "The Parks Department cannot possibly cure the mess in this area. We don't have enough people to do it."

Turning from "the filth of Marine Park to the excitement and vibrancy and cleanliness of the Brownsville Recreation Center", Commissioner Hoving said, "This is a nationally famous institution. It has an orthodonture clinic, a cerebral palsy center, a Golden Age center, wonderful facilities for children of all ages. It's great! But for how long?" the Commissioner asked.

"To keep pace with its excellence, it needs, and very urgently, three recreation workers. Without the money we cannot fill those jobs."

Theoretically visiting a neighborhood playground without a name at 23rd Street between 4th and 5th Avenues in Brooklyn, Commissioner Hoving described it as "twisted, broken and dirty. It is an ominous and sinister place. We can't cure it! There is no steady attendant — no full-time recreation staff. And there is no doubt," said the Parks Commissioner, "that the dearth of maintenance and recreation staff has contributed to its becoming a jungle of vandalism and hopelessness".

The Commissioner invited the Board of Estimate members and City Councilmen to "sit down on a bench here — if we can find one that has slats —
and talk to one of the mothers by means of a letter I received: 'Why can't you do something about this awful mess? I cry, for it is so horrible. There is never a parkie around ever. The kids get bored and break everything. There are no balls or bats or anything for the kids to play with. No one in this City has ever cared about this. Try, please, to get something done.'"

Commissioner Hoving said that the "antidote" for the conditions he described "is people — men to be here, men to clean it — men to cure it."

The Parks Commissioner noted that "In 1941, we had 466 playgrounds and 213 mechanics. In 1965, we had 900 playgrounds and 237 mechanics. What a superlative growth!" exclaimed the Commissioner. "In 25 years our playgrounds have increased 93%. Our mechanics have increased a ridiculous and appalling 12%.

In other large cities, Commissioner Hoving told the Board of Estimate and City Councilmen, the budget for parks "is not less than 3% of the total budget. Our budget in 1956 was 1.5%. That shrank steadily — that dwindled until last year in the depths of austerity to a brilliant one per cent. This year," said Commissioner Hoving, "the Executive Budget is 1.4 per cent. So we are out of the cellar of austerity." But, the Commissioner made clear that this is not enough.

He urged the City Council and Board of Estimate to retain the $1.3 million for Operation Spruce-Up which has rehabilitated 14 playgrounds in the last two months. Commissioner Hoving also emphasized the need for $37,000 for in-service training; $18,477 for personal services for the Department's design staff; $4.4 million to add to our maintenance staff above and beyond Spruce-Up; $3.6 million for 400 more recreation workers; $150,000 for tree planting under the Salute to the Seasons program; and $200,000 for Shakespeare in the Park.

Warning that cuts in his budget would mean a halt to building new facilities, Commissioner Hoving said "let us not delude ourselves into thinking we can go on building without staffing. Fish or cut bait," Hoving told the officials. "If we don't want the men to keep our parks decent, let's stop building .... No Coney Island Skating Rink. No Little League fields. No indoor recreation centers. No tree planting. No ball field lights. It might put the opening of the Children's Zoo in jeopardy."

Commissioner Hoving said that "we are entering a new era of appreciation of parks, recreation and cultural institutions. You can feel a
a sense of urgency from the people," He implored the city officials to "cross the threshold" of this new era. "Go beyond it! You know we can't go backwards," Commissioner Hoving concluded.
Thomas P. F. Hoving, Commissioner of Parks, announces that the bathing and swimming season at the 17.96 miles of municipal-operated beach will open Saturday, May 21st, and sixteen outdoor swimming pools will open officially on May 28th, 1966.

The Prospect Park Golden Age Center located in the Picnic House, near the West Drive and Fifth Street in Prospect Park, will be the scene of a Music and Dance Program on Saturday, May 21st, 1966, at 1:30 p.m., it was announced today by Commissioner of Parks Thomas P.P. Hoving.

Sponsored by the Williamsburgh Settlement House Center and the Colony House Youth Board, this event is part of the celebration of Senior Citizens' Month.
Recreation leaders in charge of the New York City Parks Department's annual folk dance festival—which will be held on June 4th in Prospect Park—have prepared a presentation book with pictures and information on this gala event.

The folk dance festival, directed by Joe and Alice Nash of the Recreation Division, trains boys and girls in local playgrounds in the folk dances of many nations. Over 1,000 boys and girls are expected to dance in the June 4th festival.

More than 50 Department of Parks Recreation Directors are teaching the youngsters.

The Recreation Directors conducting this program will be glad to furnish further information and are available for interviews. They may be reached at the following locations:

Brooklyn War Memorial, Wednesday A.M.'s only from 9:30 to 11:30 - MA 4-6030

Milt Polsky A.M.'s until 10:00 and evenings until 12:00 P.M. 929-8871

Joe and Alice Nash - OL 8-8815 (Home) or RE 4-1000
Thomas P.F. Hoving, Commissioner of Parks, announced that a special program in observation of Senior Citizen's Month will be presented at the Prospect Park Golden Age Center, West Drive opposite 5th Street and Prospect Park West, on Saturday, May 28th, at 2:00 P.M.

The program will consist of presentations by a concert pianist, a dancer, a vocalist, and by a group of folk and square dancers.

All young-in-heart people, 60 years of age and over, as well as the public are invited to the Picnic House in Prospect Park for this occasion. Admission is free. This would be a good opportunity for those approaching retirement age to explore the recreational opportunities that Park Department senior citizens centers have to offer throughout the year.

These centers owe their popularity to their warm, club-like atmosphere and to the fact that the members help to plan their own activities. Today, one out of every ten persons is over the age of 65. Many have been too busy during their years of employment or while homemaking for their families to develop recreational interests which could be continued in later life. Membership in a Park Department Golden Age Center enables them to participate in meaningful activities and, equally important, to expand their circle of friendship. There are eight senior citizens centers in the park system.

Engel composes his own pop music on his many instruments and has produced an LP with guitar, piano, bass and drums. He calls his LP "Ethnic Pop."

After founding the World Jazz Festival at the Central Park Mall in 1955, Mr. Engel has led a group of foreign embassy officials in impromptu jam sessions in the rotunda of the United States Senate Building in Washington where he played the clarinet and the embassy officials played their native instruments. He has appeared on college campuses throughout the country and on the Johnny Carson's Show with Skith Henderson.

THE NAUMBURG ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS, named after their founder, Elkan Naumburg, have been heard continuously each summer on the Mall since 1905. Mr. Naumburg saw the need to encourage and stimulate the public’s interest in symphonic, classical, and semiclassical music. Because the old bandstand was inadequate, in 1923 he donated to the City of New York the present shell for use by the Naumburg Concerts and other worthy forms of musical entertainment. The concerts formerly had been held on Memorial Day, July Fourth, and Labor Day.

After Elkan Naumburg’s death in 1924, the concerts were continued by his sons, Walter W. Naumburg and George W. Naumburg, and an additional concert was added on July 31st, the date of their father’s death.

Walter W. Naumburg died in 1959 and his will provided for the perpetuation of these concerts. George W. Naumburg will continue as President of these Orchestral Concerts. The ideals of Elkan Naumburg, who sixty-one years ago saw the need for music for many, will be faithfully followed. The Committee entrusted with the planning of these concerts will seek to provide, in this beautiful setting, the best possible programs of classical symphonies, concerti and vocal works, as well as works of contemporary composers in the serious and light fields.

THE NAUMBURG concerts for the season of 1966 are therefore set down for Monday, May 30th at 8:30 P.M., Monday, July 4th at 8:30 P.M., Sunday, July 31st at 8:30 P.M., and Labor Day, Monday, September 5th at 8:30 P.M. These dates are remembered by lovers of good music.

RICHARD BURGIN, a violin pupil of Joachim and Auer, was induced by Pierre Monteux to come to America as concertmaster of the Boston Symphony. He spent many years under Monteux, Koussevitsky, and Munch as leader of the orchestra and soloist in almost all of the great classical violin concerti and in newer works, such as the Sibelius and Prokofiev. His fame as associate conductor of that great orchestra is as well deserved. He has conducted over three hundred performances and, in many instances, has presented the American premiere of important modern works. His present full time devotion to conducting is eagerly welcomed by audiences in all parts of the country. This summer he will participate in the Florida International Music Festival at Daytona Beach as faculty member and conductor when the London Symphony will appear in its first prolonged visit to an American city.

MCHENRY BOATWRIGHT’s great baritone voice was first heard in church choirs in Georgia. He moved to Boston and attended the New England Conservatory of Music where he attained his first degree for his piano studies. Then followed many awards for his singing career and his Town Hall debut in 1956. Since then he has made concert tours in Europe, Asia, and South America. He has sung oratorios under the batons of Ormandy, Bernstein, Wallenstein, Paray, and Munch and he has sung the great roles in Pelleas, Faust, Otello, Aida, and Boris. In lighter music he has starred in "Porgy and Bess" at the Hollywood Bowl. Last year he appeared with the Philadelphia Orchestra in the American premiere of Benjamin Britten’s Cantata Misericordium and also had the honor of inaugurating the Bulart Festival in San Francisco. He recently appeared in "Don Carlos" with the Zurich Opera and in "Don Giovanni" in Boston. Mr. Boatwright appears on May 27th with the San Francisco Opera in "Mignon" and later with them in "II Trovatore."
The Annual Gordon Beck Memorial Show conducted by the Recreation Division of the Department of Parks will be held on Sunday, June 5, 1966 at 2 P.M., on the Mall in Central Park.

WILL LAUNCH GUGGENHEIM MEMORIAL CONCERTS,
ANNOUNCES COMMISSIONER HOVING:

Costumes, Dancing, Refreshments to Evoke Turn-of-Century Mood

A mammoth "Party in the Park" for all New Yorkers will launch the 49th season of Guggenheim Memorial Concerts by the Goldman Band on Wednesday evening, June 22nd, it was announced today by New York City Parks Commissioner Thomas P. F. Hoving.

At 8:30 P. M. Mayor John Lindsay will watch bandmaster Richard Franko Goldman take up the baton and lead the 53-man band in the opening number of this first Central Park concert of the season. From the start of the concert, the Central Park Mall area will be transformed into a turn-of-the-century outdoor party for all of New York.

Civic dignitaries will be invited to attend in costumes of the early 1900's and it is hoped that many of the public will come in attire of the period when the first Guggenheim Memorial Concerts were presented in Central Park.

In keeping with the nostalgic mood of this "Party in the Park", food and beverage will be served at prices of 50 years ago. Zum-Zum will provide their celebrated weiners at 5¢ a piece. Rheingold Beer will be on tap at 5¢ a glass. Pepsi-Cola will be sold at 5¢, and 5¢ Good Humor ice cream will be sold at the many refreshment stands set up for the crowds. At the concert's conclusion, at approximately 10:00 P.M., dancing will begin -- from folk to the latest variation of the frug -- and will continue until midnight.

The "Party in the Park!, inaugurating the 1968 summer season of free Guggenheim Memorial Concerts in the city's Central, Prospect and East River Parks, is designed "to encourage New Yorkers' use of their parks and to demonstrate how, through public participation, the parks can become the delightful, safe, recreation and relaxation centers they were meant to be", Mr. Hoving said. "For years now we have been telling tourists that New York is a Summer Festival. This has been true for our visitors, but how about New Yorkers themselves? We hope that all of New York will join in this gala party on the first evening of summer and discover for themselves the pleasures of our parks. Only by making total use of these parks can New Yorkers call them their own."

Mr. Hoving pointed out that the Goldman Band, which has played the Guggenheim Memorial Concerts for the past 48 years, is the foremost professional band in the United States today. "In this jet age it is almost a paradox that the residents of a bustling city like New York are able to combine the pleasure of a band concert with the relaxation of a leisurely summer evening outdoors -- all free."

Conductor Richard Franko Goldman, whose father founded the Goldman Band in 1911 stated that the concerts are planned for all of New York's music lovers. "Our repertoire ranges from marches to specially commissioned contemporary works, folk music, light classics and popular musical comedy hits. For example, one of the audience's favorites," he said, "is our 'West Side Story' medley."

The free concerts, which attract thousands each summer, are presented by The Daniel and Florence Guggenheim Foundation as "an annual gift to the people of the City of New York in memory of Daniel and Florence Guggenheim."

This year's Guggenheim Memorial Concerts, 40 in all, will be given on Wednesday, Friday and Sunday evenings at the Mall in Central Park, on Saturday evenings at the Prospect Park Music Grove, and on Thursday evenings at the East River Park Amphitheatre. All concerts begin at 8:30 P.M.

Because of the extended dry spell this summer, some of New York City's 550,000 street trees may die from lack of water. Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving requested that the public aid in preventing the loss of street trees by following this procedure:

1. Loosen the soil around the tree with a spading fork. (This will permit moisture to seep to the tree roots)

2. Add five pails full of water to the soil each week during dry periods.

Commissioner Robert D. Clarke of Water Supply, Gés and Electricity has granted approval of the use of the water and stated "Because of the quantity of water contained in five pails is insignificant in light of the fact that it is vital to the continued life and growth of the trees and it is consistent with the present policy of permitting use of water for private lawns and gardens six hours per week. Trees not only provide beauty to city streets but also furnish shade to many of our citizens during hot weather."

A unique city-wide "flying saucer" competition for children in parks in all five boroughs was announced today by Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving.

Teams of boys and girls up to age 16 will compete in a massive "Awake" Gyro Disc Derby by tossing the orange plastic disc which resembles a flying saucer.

The climax of the Derby will be for the "Awake" Gyro Disc Championship at the Sheep Meadow in Central Park at 10:30 A.M. on August 25. Commissioner Hoving will toss out the first disc to signal the start of the Derby finals.

Commissioner Hoving said the "Awake" Gyro Disc Derby is being held through the cooperation of the Birds Eye Division of General Foods Corporation. Birds Eye has donated 8,000 "Awake" Gyro Discs to be distributed to competitors throughout the city and for use as recreational equipment in playgrounds by the Department of Parks. Two thousand of the discs will be given to early arrivers at the Central Park championship along with balloons and lollipops.

"This is another feature in the Department's continuing campaign to reintroduce New York City's parks to the people and to provide wholesome fun for the city's youngsters," Commissioner Hoving said.
The "Awake" Gyro Disc Derby begins with local competitions at all Department of Parks facilities throughout the city during the week of August 8. The youngsters will compete in four age groups: Class A—boys and girls up to 8 years of age; Class B—girls aged 9 to 14; Class C—boys aged 9 to 13; Class D—boys aged 14 to 16.

Winning teams in the local competitions then will vie on August 18 for Borough Championships in the Bronx at Mullaly Playground, Brooklyn at the 11th Street Bandstand in Prospect Park, Manhattan at the Sheep Meadow in Central Park, Richmond at Clove Lakes Park, and Queens at Pomonok Playground. Winners and runners-up in each borough will receive engraved trophies which have been provided by Birds Eye.

On August 25, two "professionals" will demonstrate the art of throwing the discs before the winning teams face off in the Sheep Meadow for the "Awake" Gyro Disc Championship and transistor radio prizes which were donated by Birds Eye.

The prizes will be awarded by Commissioner Hoving and Mr. Roy W. Stevens, Birds Eye National Sales Manager.

The Sheep Meadow in Central Park has now been added as another area.

Fifty junior good citizens will be honored at special ceremonies sponsored by the Parks Department in the Mall in Central Park today (Wednesday, August 24) with Batman (Adam West) and Robin (Burt Ward) presenting citations to the nominees before an estimated 10,000 youngsters at 11:00 o'clock.

The honorees have been selected from the membership of some twenty-five youth groups, among them the P.A.L., the Y.M.C.A., Girl Scouts, HARYOU-ACT, Mobilization for Youth, the Grand Street Settlement, United Students of the Americas and the C.Y.O. Also among the honorees are newsboys from four local area newspapers and three children nominated through the WNEW-TV show "Wonderama."

Parks Commissioner Thomas P. P. Hoving, television's Sonny Fox, who will be master of ceremonies, and the Rev. R. E. Terwilliger of All Saints Episcopal Church will be honored guests on the dais.

An hour-long program of entertainment, including magicians, a juggler and musicians, will be a part of the event designed by the Parks Department to focus attention on the "good kids" of the community who are rarely spotlighted. Further reward for the "good kids" will be the distribution of a variety of Batman souvenirs and a view of the film and television personality's "Batboat" which has been shipped from Texas for the occasion.

Commissioner Hoving has pointed out that "we can't possibly single out every youngster who deserves recognition but we hope that each of them will understand that the nominees receiving citations represent them all."

Rev. Terwilliger is the minister who last week told his parishioners that "Batman" had been successful because it "provided a much needed emotional and almost religious outlet for many television viewers."

No tickets are required for the junior good citizenship program which is free to the public.
When a massive invasion of little people with "flying saucers" is reported in the Central Park Sheep Meadow on Thursday, August 25, don't panic. It will be the City Championships of the "Awake" Gyro Disc Derby.

Parks Commissioner Thomas P. F. Hoving disclosed today that the little people actually are 80 children who proved most skillful in tossing the "Awake" Gyro Discs by winning earlier championships in all five boroughs.

Commissioner Hoving said the Parks Department's Recreation Division conducted local eliminations in the Derby at its facilities in the Bronx, Brooklyn, Manhattan, Queens and Staten Island. About 9,000 children participated in the local contests to choose the Borough Champions who now will compete for the city title.

The Derby and Championships were held through the cooperation of the Birds Eye Division of General Foods Corporation. It has donated 8,000 "Awake" Gyro Discs and all prizes for the contests to the Parks Department.

Forty two-member teams of girls and boys in four age groups will enter the lists at Central Park at 10:30 a.m. Mr. John (Bud) Palmer, Commissioner of Public Events, and Mr. Roy W. Stevens, Birds Eye National Sales Manager will launch the bright orange plastic saucers...
to signal the start of the tournament to decide who are the City Champions. Transistor radios will be awarded as prizes to the children who finish first, second and third in each age group.

The first 2,000 spectators at the Sheep Meadow will receive free "Awake" Gyro Discs, compliments of Birds Eye. The contestants are competing in four age groups: Class A, boys and girls through 8 years of age; Class B, girls aged 9 through 14; Class C, boys aged 9 through 13; and Class D, boys aged 14, 15 and 16.

Commissioner Hoving said the "Awake" Gyro Disc Derby "was part of the Parks Department program to provide more recreation and entertainment for the people who use New York City's parks. These flying saucer toys provide children with a unique, exciting sport which did not previously exist at our playgrounds. We have received enough of them to supply most of our playgrounds."

The Derby began with local competitions throughout the city during the week of August 8. Winners in these contests then vied for the championships in each borough. First and second place borough champion winners in each age group received "Awake" Gyro Disc Trophies.

NOTE TO EDITOR: In case of rain on August 25, the City Championships will be held at the same time on Friday, August 26.

FESTIVAL OF EXPERIMENTAL PUBLIC GAMES BEGINS FRIDAY,
AUGUST 26, 1966

Parks Commissioner Thomas P. P. Hoving announced today that a festival of experimental public games will begin at 2 P.M., on Friday, August 26th, at Belmont Avenue Playground, 182nd Street and Belmont Avenue, Bronx.

Called "Events in the Open Air" (EIOA), the festival will consist of two kinds of group games. One utilizes paints, Magic Markers, crayons, paper and other collage materials, and results in communal productions involving scores of people. The other is field games played on a grid marked off on the ground on which obstacles are placed. Movements in these field games are cued by the sound of horns and drums.

EIOA is conceived and organized by Phyllis Yampolsky, who is working for the Parks Department during the summer as a Festival Design Consultant on a grant provided by the George and Margarita Delacorte Foundation. Miss Yampolsky, an artist, conducted the widely publicized art "happening" in Central Park on May 15th.

The Festival will feature, among other unusual events, painting with Magic Markers on various participants' vinyl capes.
Magic Markers have been provided as a public service by the Magic Marker Corporation, and the vinyl capes from Ross and Roberts, Inc.

Active in the preparations for the Belmont Park Festival is a Parks Department recreation team called "Operation Safety Valve". The park, located in one of the city's troubled areas, is presently receiving the coordinated services of the Youth Board, the City Commission on Human Rights and the Parks Department's "Operation Safety Valve" team.

The Bronx event is one of a series designed to create greater use of parks by staging programs involving community participation. Local groups are involved in the planning as well as in participation in the actual production.

To further introduce EIOA, Miss Yampolsky will join six children on Monday, August 29th at Noon for a coordinated painting session in the window of Mark Cross, Ltd., 707 Fifth Avenue, and at 6 P.M. will inaugurate the "Museum in Modern Air", a repository for EIOA materials, in Tennis Court Building #3, Baisley Pond Park, Queens.

Other EIOA projects scheduled in City parks and playgrounds are: September 1st at 745 10th Avenue; September 4th at the west end of Baisley Pond Park, Queens; September 10th at Sara Delano Roosevelt Playground, Canal to E. Houston St., Christie and Forsyth Sts.; and September 17th at 52nd St. and Fort Hamilton Pkwy. Plqd., Brooklyn. All these subsequent events will be held at 1 P.M.

Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving will express the gratitude of New York City's dancers to the Consolidated Edison Company of New York on

On behalf of Commissioner Hoving, Henry J. Stern, Executive Director of the Department of Parks, will present a citation to Con Ed on

Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving announced today a proposal for a hiking and biking trail through the Greenbelt of Staten Island. In his endorsement of a proposal prepared by Staten Island civic and planning groups, Commissioner Hoving said that "this brochure outlining the Olmsted Trailway is the most exciting plan in the recent history of the conservation movement."

Commissioner Hoving said that he was "prepared to fight for it (the Olmsted Trailway) with all the weapons available to me in this Arsenal—and elsewhere."

"There is a sad phenomenon going on in this country today," said Commissioner Hoving. "It seems that the car has become more important than the people whose servant it is supposed to be. Facilities for cars, from gigantic parking lots to super highways, are eating up the land by a million acres a year. Obviously," said the Parks Commissioner, "the greatest concentration of concrete and asphalt is in the city and its approaches. Equally, people live in this city. Are they supposed, like the Ailanthus, to struggle for survival by thrusting themselves through cracks in the hardtop?", he asked. Commissioner Hoving said that this "conflict of interests...must be resolved—on the side of human beings."

Commissioner Hoving said that "Staten Island is the only borough of New York that is still semi-bucolic. Future generations will ask of us why we did not have the vision of Olmsted when he created Central Park and urged this great linear park in Staten Island."

The Olmsted Trailway was proposed by Citizens

The Olmsted Trailway was inspired by Frederick Law Olmsted, who, with Calvert Vaux, won the competition for the plan for Central Park in 1858, and in 1871, proposed that "This ridge," these "steep and broken declivities" of Staten Island's Greenbelt be made into a park "four miles in length".

The present Olmsted Trailway proposal calls for a linear park along the ridge of the Greenbelt, 300 feet wide along its 4.7 mile length. The Trailway lies in the mapped right-of-way of Section One of the Richmond Parkway. The Mayor's Transportation Council is currently studying alternate routes for Section One.

The Olmsted Trailway would include 10 miles of hiking trails, 5.6 miles of bikeway, bridle paths, boating, fishing, picnicking facilities, access to historic Richmond-town and an Arboretum.

Assistance for the development of the Trailway would be sought from the Land and Water Conservation Fund of the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation; from the Open Space Land Program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and (for development of a university-oriented environmental workshop) Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965. It is proposed that maintenance of the trails be largely undertaken by private initiative as had the Long Trail in Vermont been cared for since 1931. Private funds to match
City funds will be sought for a comprehensive site analysis and for preparing final plans.

The Trailway would run through "oak, beach, sweet gum and hickory, past glacial ponds, past scouting and day camps and the High Rock Nature Conservation Center..." It would "Shelve across the side of Bucks Hollow and into the woods of Lighthouse Hill, then drops below Latourette Golf Course to the fenways of Richmond Creek." At Todt Hill, the Trailway would attain "the highest tidewater elevation on the Atlantic seaboard south of Mt. Desert, Me.", according to the Olmsted Trailway brochure. The brochure points out that "At only three points, in a distance of nearly five miles is the ridge bisected by road. Elsewhere along its length is a hardwood forest more than three-quarters of a mile wide in certain places; a forest containing the chestnut oak, the mockernut, the sassafras and the ironwood; black haw and choke cherry, cinnamon fern and skunk cabbage, arrowhead and Canada mayflower and prout lily." Wildlife in this area, according to the brochure, ranges "from the heron and pheasant to the muskrat, the opossum and raccoon."

The first of five plus one "Events in Open Air" which will "happen" in Riverside Park at 115th Street on Wednesday, August 3rd at 2 P.M., is a small-scale sneak preview of the series, it was announced today by Parks Commissioner Thomas P. F. Hoving.

The "happenings", as they are sometimes called, are "experimental public games, restricted to no one, and are designed to create situations that probe the environment we live in by the six (or seven) senses".

The events are planned by five community parks, one in each Borough and a "plus one", which is a two-day unprecedented-type of festival in Central Park. Others are in preparation. The events consist of experimentation by the community with space and shape, motion and time, plus color and light. The media of expression and discovery range from improvised grid paintings, with each participant contributing in crayon, paint, or construction paper to communal creations; to a neighborhood collage in which photographs of people and places in the neighborhood will be mounted and displayed along with unrestricted scribbles.

"Events in Open Air" is sponsored by George Delacorte in cooperation with the Department of Parks.

The following organizations provided the materials which were required to make "Events in Open Air" possible:

- Orgami paper from Azuma, Inc.
- Markers from Magic Markers, Inc.
- Paper contributed by Lindenmeyer-Schlosser, Inc.
- Ribbon from Royal Ribbon Co.
- Crayola crayons courtesy of Binney Smith, Inc.
- EIOA buttons donated by N. G. Slater, Inc.
- Scissors courtesy of Arthur Brown, Inc.
- Paint contributed by New Masters, Inc.

The press is welcome to view these most unusual proceedings.

Because of the extended dry spell this summer, some of New York City's 550,000 street trees may die from lack of water.

Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving requested that the public aid in preventing the loss of street trees by following this procedure:

1. Loosen the soil around the tree with a spading fork. (This will permit moisture to seep to the tree roots)

2. Add five pails full of water to the soil each week during dry periods.

Commissioner Robert D. Clarke of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity has granted approval of the use of the water and stated "Because of the quantity of water contained in five pails is insignificant in light of the fact that it is vital to the continued life and growth of the trees and it is consistent with the present policy of permitting use of water for private lawns and gardens six hours per week. Trees not only provide beauty to city streets but also furnish shade to many of our citizens during hot weather."

A unique city-wide "flying saucer" competition for children in parks in all five boroughs was announced today by Parks Commissioner Thomas P.F. Hoving.

Teams of boys and girls up to age 16 will compete in a massive "Awake" Gyro Disc Derby by tossing the orange plastic disc which resembles a flying saucer.

Commissioner Hoving said the "Awake" Gyro Disc Derby is being held through the cooperation of the Birds Eye Division of General Foods Corporation. Birds Eye has donated 8,000 "Awake" Gyro Discs to be distributed to competitors throughout the city and for use as recreational equipment in playgrounds by the Department of Parks. Two thousand of the discs will be given to early arrivers at the Central Park championship along with balloons and lollipops.

"This is another feature in the Department's continuing campaign to reintroduce New York City's parks to the people and to provide wholesome fun for the city's youngsters," Commissioner Hoving said.
